Reminders come thick and fast that Vermont's highways are oftentimes too narrow.

Judging by his unanimous re-election, Pres. Suitor of the Vermont A. F. of L., just satisfies.

Whatever untoward event takes place to-day may be laid to the day that Tom Lawson made famous.

We wonder if the insurance companies have cancelled their risks on the new president of the Haitian republic.

Burlington proposes to form a baseball team. Wait a little while and the players can wear mittens instead of gloves.

The Texas Rangers found a quantity of Manners which had been concealed under the bushes—and not a rat in sight.

We know that the United States army is still experimenting with the machines of the air, because now and then some officer gets killed and the news creeps into public print.

"Three Hundred Miles to Petrograd" is not the popular playpiece to Russians that "Forty-five Miles from Broadway" was to New Yorkers. It's too serious and potential in the heavy drama.

Such fragile things are baseball leagues that the "Western Massachusetts League" was put out of business by the rain. The old Northern league was put out of business because of a leaky pocketbook.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican calls it a "debt of honor" which some 12,000 Americans owe the United States government for being transported back from Europe at the outbreak of the war. It most certainly is.

The Vermont man who has resigned as game warden in order to become superintendent of schools ought to be able to teach the young idea to shoot.—Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

The above shows what a free lance with the pen can perpetrate.

There is plenty of time yet for President Wilson to come back to New England and enjoy himself. There's the rest of the summer, then Indian summer, and then good old Yankee "fall of the year" when outdoor life in this favored section is the acme of human happiness.

Vermont is beginning to lose some of her Italian population as the result of the increasing military demands of their home country in her war against Austria. The need of men is becoming more and more imperative as the operations extend; and before the war ends it is likely that a large number will be called from the Vermont quarry sections to the homeland.

Those Vermont autoists touring east from California will be pleased when they get onto some real roads in Vermont once more. Being compelled to travel by gasoline at the rate of three and five miles an hour, with the added danger of dropping into "chuck holes" very frequently, is by no means a pleasing program. Their reports have a tendency to make Vermont automobilists even more satisfied with their home roads.

The Montpelier Argus hints that the Morrisville authorities may not be desirous that automobile parties be entertained in their pretty little village, taking for the basis of its judgment that about 85 autoists were listed for prosecution for failure to herald their approach at every corner. Not so, not so; they're probably seeking aural entertainments on a dull day. Motorists should not avoid Morrisville, but they should go equipped with a steam calliope.

Vice-President Marshall's devotion to his chief is most touching. In fact, it is so touching as almost to reduce one to tears of pity. The honored gentleman who claims Indiana as his home state and who spends his time now and then in Washington, is alleged to have made the following asseveration:

"I may be a dreamer, but I believe that when this war is over, out of it all will loom President Wilson, the greatest man the world has ever known."

Does the honored vice-president overlook the Nazarene, a follower of whom he professes to be? Or was he incorrectly reported? There is something wrong somewhere.

CARRANZA'S AFFRONT TO THE UNITED STATES.

For a man who represents apparently only a percentage of the people of the country and who is having a hard time holding his own against a competitor for dictatorial powers, Carranza shows no slight presumption when he sends word to the United States government that the people of Mexico will oppose any interference on the part of this country and the South American nations looking toward peace in the stricken republic. It perhaps is true that the Mexicans in the mass are suspicious of the United States and of her good intentions as a neighbor, but they have been driven to such a state of despair over the continued blood spilling by the rivals for control that many would not doubt accept any means, even from a hated country, which would insure a surcease from the human sacrifice. Long before this time a considerable part of the Mexican nation must have been convinced that the policy of letting the contestants fight it out will never bring lasting peace. Surely no solution of the trouble by that method seems to be near and yet there has been great bloodshed and terrible horror in many parts of the nation. The rivals are so nearly matched that neither is gaining a decided advantage in the military sense or in the confidence of the great mass of people who are taking no part in the fighting. The latter, being powerless to oppose the will of the military leaders, may look with favor on the efforts of the United States and the South American nations that will not deprive them of any of their property and of their former liberties. Carranza is not their spokesman by any means, and when he declares that the people of Mexico will oppose any interference, he is talking beside the mark.

Veterans' Reunions Planned.

Woodstock, Aug. 13.—The veterans of Orange and Windsor counties will hold their annual reunion here Wednesday, Aug. 18. If the weather permits the exercises will be held on the fair ground grandstand. Music will be by the Band of the 1st Regt. Among those who have already sent acceptance were F. A. Hildreth of Chester, J. E. Weeks of Middlebury and the Rev. Alfred J. Hough of Brownsville.

Morrisville, Aug. 13.—The sixth annual reunion of Co. D, 5th Vermont volunteer infantry, will be held on the shore of Lake Champlain Thursday, Aug. 19. The parade will form at the Army camp at 10 a. m., headed by the Morrisville Military band, and march to the grounds. The G. I. Bates will serve as master of ceremonies. The speaker of the day will be Prof. Ralph G. Reynolds.

CURRENT COMMENT

A Debt of Honor.

The obligation of the stranded Americans in Europe who borrowed money from the government to get home with at the outbreak of the war is surely a debt of honor. Of the 12,000 who were helped several hundreds have not yet paid up, and Secretary McAdoo is quite right in getting after them with a sharp stick. The money or a good excuse ought to have been forthcoming long ago.—First, let the names be published.—Springfield Republican.

Crop Report Significant.

The government report on the condition of the growing cereals as of Aug. 1, shows an unprecedented importance this year, both for our own country and for Europe. Owing to the entire blockade of Russia, America has become with the war the granary of the nations of western Europe. England and to some extent France as well, are bound to seek their sustenance in the bounty of the American harvest. It is good for them that in spite of wet weather the prospect for wheat, corn and oats approximates the best.
